NOTES FROM FATHER BOB...

Twelfth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Jesus, after giving his disciples their mission and their apostolic calling, warns them of the opposition that they will encounter as they try to preach the gospel. He warns of persecution and imprisonment, of hostility and heartbreak. Then he says, "Do not be afraid." Be brave. These words are not uttered as mere wishful fancy. They are based on a rock solid foundation – the foundation of God's unfailing love for each one of us.

God knows the life-story of each little sparrow. How much more does he know your story and the feelings of your heart? God knows you inside and out, and God's knowing of people is also and always a loving of people. Every hair of your head has been counted.

This love of God for us tells how infinitely beautiful and loveable we are. Against all our expectations, and often against all appearances to the contrary, against the ugliness of so much of human life, and against our own feelings of worthlessness and wickedness, God loves us. His love for us is expressed in Jesus Christ and in everything that Jesus says. "You are worth more than hundreds of sparrows." Do not let anyone tell you something different.

The story of Adam and Eve and the serpent well describes our human condition in all its mess and misery. The story of Jesus Christ, crucified and raised again, represents to us the story of our struggle and eventual survival and success as human beings. If the fall was a crash that brought the world tumbling down, then the life and love of Jesus Christ is the restoration and the promise of life to all. So says Saint Paul to the Romans today.

After the tragic events of September 11, 2001 in America, the world has become terribly afraid. We have been made very much aware of how destructive we can be. The medium of television brings into our homes and front rooms, not only the beauty of this world, but, the terror too. What we used to read in history books or hear about in newspapers is now portrayed in our very midst.

In our present fears people are making great efforts to understand one another. Most recently in the West people are buying the Koran to try and learn more about the peoples of the Middle East. This learning about others should go hand-in-hand with our learning about ourselves. We need to appreciate better the true nature of our human condition, our frailty and our flaws.

In Jesus Christ, who took on our flesh and lived among us, we have our way to a true humanity. He can give us grace to become children of God. If we live as God's children, all fears will go away, and we can help this troubled world to know that there is no need to be afraid.

St. Cletus Parish Ministry Sunday

This weekend we celebrate St. Cletus Parish Ministries. Stop by one of the many ministry booths and find out more about how to get involved in your parish. We are all called to serve and share our time, talent and treasure in doing the work of the Lord. Don't miss this opportunity to answer that call more fully.

If you are already very involved in ministry within our parish community stop by a booth of a different ministry and affirm their efforts to help bring the Lord to all within our parish family.

Let us celebrate our willingness to be open to the Lord's call and to be instruments of His gospel message to the world around us.

Extraordinary Blessings on all of our Parish Ministries, Father Bob

Invest just five minutes a day, and your faith will deepen and grow—a day at a time.

SUNDAY, JUNE 22, 2008 TWELFTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME Bird watching

God's ability to count the hairs on our heads may be easier in some cases than others! But for those who sometimes feel God is too busy to care about them (funny how we attribute our limitations to God), Jesus' assurance about God's attention to the lowly sparrow should provide good news. Yet Jesus offers more than comfort. Three times he says, "Do not be afraid," because his disciples are threatened with extinction by the enemies of the gospel. Like conservationists who trace the actual number of birds in an endangered species, God sustains and protects each of us, especially when we feel trapped and in danger. As the psalmist says, "We escaped like a bird . . . broken was the snare and we were freed."

TODAY'S READINGS: Jeremiah 20:10-13; Romans 5:12-15; Matthew 10:26-33

"Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from your Father."

MONDAY, JUNE 23 Beneath the surface

Why is it so much easier to notice the flaws and weaknesses in others than in ourselves? Part of the answer is that the essential part of each person is invisible to the eye. Our hopes and expectations, worries and fears, reasons and intentions make up our inner world, and they are as real to us as our hands and feet. Unfortunately we often forget this fact when we are scrutinizing another's actions. We see only the act itself, not the worry or fear (or possibly the good intention!) behind it. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow wrote that if we could read the secret history of others, we would find in each person's life suffering enough to disarm all hostility. Today, remember that everyone has a "secret history."

TODAY'S READINGS: 2 Kings 17:5-8, 13-15a, 18; Matthew 7:1-5

"Why do you notice the splinter in your brother's eye, but do not perceive the wooden beam in your own eye?"

TUESDAY, JUNE 24 NATIVITY OF JOHN THE BAPTIST What's in a name?

Most folks would agree that good parents put the best interest of their children first. Parents who don't or who live out their lives in their children or try to produce clones of themselves usually end up with families that run the risk of an invitation from Dr. Phil. At the time of John the Baptist, whose birth we remember today, people would have expected him to get the name of his priest dad and follow in his shoes. Though it took some dramatics—the appearance of an angel, the striking dumb of John's father—Elizabeth and Zechariah did give their son the name God had commanded and so set him on his mission to point the way to Jesus. We often expect our children to be just like us, but sometimes God has very different plans for them.

TODAY'S READINGS: Isaiah 49:1-6; Acts 13:22-26; Luke 1:57-66, 80

"They were going to name him Zechariah after his father. But his mother said, 'No; he is to be called John.'"

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25 Inside out

One of Christ's new teachings was the importance of starting with what is inside of people and going outward, not the other way around. Sharply critical of those who went through the pious motions but on the inside were faithless, of hypocrites, of those who thought that what one did—rather than who one was—made one holy, Jesus stressed the importance of having your inner life in order and maintaining consistency between inner disposition and outer behavior. He asks you today to reflect on your inward relationship to him, and to let your actions flow from that precious source.

TODAY'S READINGS: 2 Kings 22:8-13; 23:1-3; Matthew 7:15-20

"Every good tree bears good fruit, but the bad tree bears bad fruit."

THURSDAY, JUNE 26 Take practical measures

In Jesus' day, as in our own, many self-styled spiritual leaders talked a good talk but did not practice what they preached. Authentic spirituality, Jesus suggests, all comes down to the practice. Practice doesn't require perfection, or anything close to it, but it does suggest continued, consistent, sincere effort. When we make spiritual practices a priority, we are laying a strong foundation that will see us through the rough patches. We're building on rock, not sand. Whether it's spiritual reading, meditation, prayer, worship, or another time-honored tradition, get in a little practice today, and every day.

TODAY'S READINGS: 2 Kings 14:8-17; Matthew 7:21-29

"Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only the one who does the will of my Father."

FRIDAY, JUNE 27 Cleaning up

No one quite knows where the expression "cleanliness is next to godliness" comes from. It may be an ancient Hebrew saying. John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, used it in a homily in 1791 as if it were common wisdom. It had a practical value, because being clean helped combat disease. Religions have made cleanliness a sign of God's favor—not only the absence of dirt but also a way of saying one is in the right way with the divine. In his healing ministry, Jesus, though almost constantly "unclean" because of his contact with "undesirables," also made people clean, restoring them to health and the community. To whom can you reach out a healing and welcoming hand?

TODAY'S READINGS: 2 Kings 25:1-12; Matthew 8:1-4

"There was a leper who knelt before him, saying, 'Lord, if you choose, you can make me clean.'"

SATURDAY, JUNE 28 FEAST OF IRENAEUS, BISHOP, MARTYR The gospel truth

Irenaeus, who lived 150 years after Jesus, was the first theologian and early church leader to declare that all four gospels—Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John—were valid, "canonical" scripture. At the time Christians differed widely on the question. The Gospel of Matthew was the most popular overall, but a number of competing "gospels" were floating around. The idea of four gospels being of equal value and validity was a novelty. Thanks in part to Irenaeus' inclusive approach, we have a richness of gospel texts to draw on today.

TODAY'S READINGS: Lamentations 2:2, 10-14, 18-19;

Matthew 8:5-17

"But only speak the word, and my servant will be healed."

TIME OUT

Time is a gift from God, to be either used wisely, or wasted away. God allows us to choose how to use his gift. Do you use God's time for loving and caring deeds? It's so tempting to take time out, especially in the hazy, lazy days of summer. There is no purpose in taking time out from Christian study or worship to waste away the summer!

Rummage Sale!

Not only do we need your "treasures" for the July 26, 2008 rummage sale, we need your talent. In order for this event to be successful, we will need many volunteers. Please stop by the Social Concerns table this weekend to sign up! There will be a pre-sale shopping event for volunteers who work 5 hours or more! Student volunteers, grades 7 and up, are most welcome. Come one, come all. Let's make this parish wide event span the generations! You can also contact us to volunteer at: socialconcerns@stcletusparish.com.
