Notes from Fr. Bob...

THIRD SUNDAY OF LENT

In the last 20 years we have had two world summits about poverty and environmental issues. The first was at Rio in Brazil, the second at Johannesburg in South Africa. They brought together not just governments but also businesses and agencies concerned with aid and the environment. We could say that on both occasions most of the wisdom of the world came together with the chance to improve our relationships with each other and the world in which we live. On both occasions it was felt that the lesser wisdoms of the world ultimately won out. Each group's concern for its own short-term needs and an inability to think in worldwide terms restricted their achievements. Businesses and the governments that back them do not like being required to comply with expensive conditions over emissions and waste disposal. Developed world societies do not like being asked to limit their freedom to travel and receive cheap resources from around the world. Developing societies do not like being asked to pay for others' environmental mistakes. For them industrial development still seems to be the way out of the poverty trap, and yet, if they take that route and increase world pollution, their countries in the tropical and desert zones of the world will again be the ones to suffer most. True wisdom demands restrictions on our consumption together with debt relief and environmentally friendly investment in the developing world, but this would mean giving up too many of what we consider to be our rights.

As the Church's first missionary, St. Paul finds himself constantly face to face with disbelief, rejection and even persecution. Elsewhere he lists all that he personally has had to put up with in the course of his preaching. And he glorifies in such a catalogue, because it brings him closer to his master, the crucified Christ. He finds the Jews and the Greeks offer different barriers to his message. The Jews look for miracles: a problem we find Jesus himself encountering when on home territory, the desire for the all-conclusive sign. In today's Gospel the people ask Jesus for a sign to justify him driving out the money changers from the Temple, and he offers them the sign of his own death and resurrection. This is the same sign that Paul too offers, but it is not an acceptable one. For the Jews it goes against their expectations of an all-conquering Messiah. For the Greeks, looking for a rational world-view, self-sacrifice does not make sense, and the idea of resurrection is bizarre. For them the ultimate aim is to be free from our bodily limitations. Yet both Paul and Jesus, in John's Gospel, insist that this is how the wisdom of God is revealed. If this appears foolish in our human eyes, it is because God's foolishness is wiser than our human wisdom. It is only through our pursuit of the same path that we can come both to understand and live out that same wisdom in our lives.

The Church believes that ultimately there is no contradiction between matters of faith and reason. This is why it also believes that Christian teachings at their deepest level speak to the world at large and not just to the converted. But our ability to reach the deeper truth and coherence of things by natural means is flawed. It is only through revelation and our faith response that we become able to see things as God sees them. This does not mean that we have a privileged access to a scientific understanding of our world. It does mean that we can bring an ongoing critique to how such understanding is used when it either supports or conflicts with the underlying aims and principles of human and earthly existence. In the ensuing argument it is hoped both sides receive further enlightenment, for the message of the figure of Christ is that real development only comes through the process of dying and rising again. The setting aside of assumptions and the search for the real truth is a painful and humbling process but it is also shot through with glory. We do not have a set of unchanging principles that just have to be followed. We have rather the person of Jesus who moves us dynamically forward to discover the truths we need in a creative and perhaps unexpected way; that is, according to the principle of dying and rising again.

LENTEN OUTREACH

SUSTAINABILITY IN EL SALVADOR

Drought has become a big problem across El Salvador, making it difficult for farmers to produce enough crops to support their families. But new farming techniques—and a new generation of young farmers—are making a difference. What would you do if your livelihood was threatened? How can you support young people in your community and around the world? Visit crsricebowl.org to learn more.

Nidelson Murga, 21, is the single father of two children and lives in a municipality in El Salvador with high rates of violence. In the photograph he appears with Mateo, 5 years old.

Before the CRS Youthbuild program, Nidelson and his mother had many family problems that have now been overcome. He now has a job and says: "Today I understand my children's need for me. Just like I didn't have it for a long time because my dad was never with me and I didn't want to repeat that pattern of not being with my children", he says.

WORD OF LIFE

"[The Gospel of Life] is therefore meant to be a precise and vigorous reaffirmation of the value of human life and its inviolability, and at the same time a pressing appeal addressed to each and every person, in the name of God: respect, protect, love and serve life, every human life! Only in this direction will you find justice, development, true freedom, peace and happiness!"

(The Gospel of Life 5)

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE OUTREACH

Children Are Survivors, Too

Children are often traumatized by domestic violence even when they are not the direct target of abuse. We must be sensitive to their experience and responsive in finding them help, particularly in our parishes and schools.

Growing up in a family torn by domestic violence can be devastating. Some victims mistakenly think their children are unaware of the abuse they suffer. “It happens late at night,” or “only in the bedroom,” they say. Most counselors recognize, however, that children are generally more perceptive than parents realize. They may not know the whole story, but they know when there is anger and fighting, and the conflict takes its toll.

The consequences for children are not surprising. They may become hyperactive or withdrawn; they may turn aggressive or violent, passive or sullen; they may be afraid, angry or sad; they may fall behind in schoolwork, lose interest in their favorite subject or hobby. And even more tragic, they may carry the traumatic effects for a lifetime, causing depression, anxiety or other personality disorders.

We should respond to children exposed to domestic violence much like we do to victims of domestic violence. Listen carefully, believe them, be supportive, help them understand that the abuse is not their fault, assure them they are not alone and can trust us. Most importantly, find them professional counseling. We can't expect them to brush it off and just forget these very real and emotional experiences.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

What are the Scrutinies?

This week we begin the Scrutinies with our RCIA group. This Lenten rite is celebrated with our young Catechumen, Anahy Martinez and our adult Candidate, Erica Velazquez, who are now called the Elect. The Scrutinies are observed on the third, fourth and fifth Sundays in Lent. These are prayerful rites that occur during Mass in which the Elect examine the hold sin has on their lives and seek the healing grace that restores their relationship with God. This year, you will see them celebrated in the 5 p.m. Mass on the first three Saturdays in March.

To scrutinize means to examine something very closely. When we celebrate the Scrutinies at Mass, we are not scrutinizing the Elect. Rather, they are scrutinizing their own lives before God and we are called to do the same along with them. The goal is to be strengthened to overcome the power of sin.

The Scrutinies are most effective when our entire faith community at St. Cletus, together with the Elect (Anahy and Erica), identify concrete issues that we all need to confront: we name the things that prevent us from living the Gospel fully. These obstacles then become the focus of the intercessions that are prayed during the Masses with the Scrutinies. Please keep Anahy and Erica in your prayers during these final weeks of Lent as they prepare to receive Sacraments of Initiation at the Easter Vigil.

BOOK DISCUSSION

Once a year the discussion group chooses a “classic” to discuss. This year’s choice is To Kill a Mockingbird by Harper Lee. We will meet via Zoom on April 13 at 7 PM.

For those who like to look ahead:

June 8, 2021: Saints for All Occasions by J Courtney Sullivan

Questions – call Denise at 708.712.8294

COMPASSIONATE CARE MINISTRY

The Compassionate Care Ministry is again badly in need of postage stamps for its notes of sympathy and support during the first year following the loss of a loved one. Each bereaved family receives six cards during that year. This means that if there are ten funerals during a period of one month, 50 stamps are needed in that month alone. Your generous donations have meant so much in the past and we are very grateful. If you are able to contribute to this worthwhile ministry in this way, it will be very much appreciated. Simply place them in an envelope marked CCM and put them through the slot in the rectory door—or drop them in one of the collection baskets located at each exit in the church building.

Sunday Notes

TOTAL ALLEGIANCE

In previous weeks we have seen how the theme of covenant—as a preparation for the baptismal covenant celebrated at Easter—occupies an important place in our cycle of Lenten readings. The notion of covenant as a relationship between two parties carries with it an expectation of mutual accountability and fidelity to the terms of the covenant. When God forged the covenant with the Jewish people on Mt. Sinai, it was a pledge of God’s protection, and it would forever permit them familiar access as the Chosen People. For their part, the Jewish people were to observe the dictates of the law, summarized most succinctly here in the form of the Ten Commandments. To be in a covenantal relationship with the Lord God requires an exclusive relationship, just as discipleship with Jesus—ritualized in baptism—demands a total allegiance to him and none other.

FEAST OF FAITH

Postures of the Mass

In the Mass, we pray not only with our lips, but with our bodies as well. We stand when the ministers enter. In Western culture, standing is a sign of attention, a mark of respect: all stand when the judge enters the courtroom, for example. Standing is also an ancient posture of prayer, mentioned frequently in the Old Testament. When the readings begin, we sit down: a listening posture. Mary sat at Jesus’ feet to listen to his teaching; the crowds sat on the hillside or the seashore to hear his words. Kneeling is another posture that is full of meaning. It expresses adoration and worship, but it can also express humility and contrition. We bow: a sign of honor and reverence, acknowledging the presence of God, especially when we receive the Eucharist. And there are other ritual gestures as well—striking the breast, genuflecting, and of course making the sign of the cross. The liturgy invites us to pray with our whole person—with heart and mind, voice and body.

HEAVEN

Heaven is at present out of sight, but in due time, as snow melts and discovers what it lay upon, so will this visible creation fade away before those greater splendors which are behind it.

Tax Statement by Request Only

As tax time approaches, we ask everyone who would like a year-end statement of their Year 2020 financial offering to the parish to fill out the form below and drop it in the collection basket after Mass, or simply call the Parish Office at (708) 352-6209 and leave a message. Please include your name, phone and envelope # or address in your message. You may also email bkallal@stcletusparish.com and submit your request electronically.
