WELCOME SUNDAY NEXT WEEKEND

Welcome to all St. Cletus newcomers. Registration is available next weekend, September 6/7, after the 5:00pm Saturday Mass and the 7:00, 8:00, 9:30 and 11:00am Sunday Masses. Please stop by the back of church, say hello, and become members.

EUCCHARISTIC ADORATION

Due to Labor Day, Eucharistic Adoration and Benediction have been cancelled this month.

NOTES FROM FATHER BOB...

Twenty-Second Sunday in Ordinary Time

Jesus knows that when we really understand the meaning of our own life, we are saved. We see ourselves as we really are, and appreciate who and what God really is. This so transforms us that we grow in communion with God, through life, through death, and forever.

Into each and every mundane situation, Jesus brings poetry. He constantly looks behind events for the meaning of those events, teaching all who will listen the eternal significance of every action and word. Today he explains how he is destined to suffer and die, and how he will rise from the dead. When Peter looks merely at the facts, Jesus points to their meaning. To overlook or ignore their meaning is to betray him. Jesus then situates the life of each disciple in relation to his own: each person must renounce self and follow him. And here is the poetry: in renouncing self and following Christ, the disciple saves his or her life. This is the meaning of our life: an offering we make to Christ, which Christ blesses and returns. Today's other readings reinforce the message.

The prophet Jeremiah bemoans his fate as he suffers ridicule for his calling. We could imagine he is full of regret, that he wishes he had taken another path in life. But his language gives away what he really feels. He uses the language of the seducer and the seduced. Even when he determines to ignore the Lord, he feels a burning fire in his heart. He is aflame with love of God. This, in spite of all external evidence, is the true meaning of his life. This is the poetry of his existence. In this he finds healing and wholeness.

St. Paul follows a related theme as he exhorts the Romans to contemplate God's mercy and give themselves in worship. We learn from him that to ponder God, to offer ourselves to God and to praise God is to be drawn into communion with God and so to be saved. We find ourselves more and more in tune with God, and strangers to the lesser values we may find around us. We discover the poetry of our own life, its meaning; and in so doing we do what is good, acceptable and perfect before the Lord.

In the light of the suffering, death and resurrection of Jesus, we begin to understand all he teaches us. We see more clearly the meaning of his life and so the meaning of our own life. We too may suffer, we too will die, but just as certainly, we will rise with him.

When we ponder the ordinary, everyday, mundane nature of much of our life, we can look for the poetry that gives it meaning. We know that our suffering and death are not meaningless, but have meaning in God. So what we do does matter, has eternal significance. We can endure so much more if we feel our endurance has meaning. We can achieve so much more if we are confident there is a meaning to what we achieve. Our faith encourages us. Our faith motivates us. Our faith makes us strong.

So let us turn around the warning of Jesus, where he says, "What, then, will a man gain if he wins the whole world and ruins his life? Or what has a man to offer in exchange for his life?" In giving ourselves over to the truth of our life, that we are Disciples of Christ, we gain the whole world. And now we understand what our life really means, we will give it away to God, freely. And God will return it to us, safeguarded and perfected. We will enjoy life with God forever.

Labor Day 2008

On this Labor Day weekend we thank God for His presence in our lives and our labor. May he continue to walk with us throughout our daily tasks and may we produce much fruit as a result of our daily labor. We ask God to bless all of those who labor each day and to give courage and strength to those who are currently seeking employment. May all our individual gifts and talents be used in our daily labor for the honor and glory of our God.

Fathers Watkins, Rodriguez, Gallagher, and I wish each of you and your families a safe and enjoyable Labor Day Weekend.

*Blessings and Peace Always,
Father Bob*

Invest just five minutes a day, and your faith will deepen and grow—a day at a time.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 31, 2008

TWENTY-SECOND SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Aiming too low

It must have stung Peter to have Jesus call him Satan, especially because Jesus had already chosen him to be the foundation rock of his community of believers. Peter, in his bullheadedness, seems a good stand-in for many of us, taking the heat for what we ourselves might have done or said (“What’s in it for us, Lord?”). Here he is merely expressing his care for Jesus by saying, as any of us would to someone we love, “God forbid that any tragedy should fall upon you.” Yet Jesus reprimands him because Peter cannot see beyond his desire to protect his Lord (and perhaps himself) from the terrible fate Jesus foresees. Peter does not yet see how great a cost a “wondrous love” will pay to accomplish good. By God’s standard no price is too high. Peter, we know, will learn.

TODAY’S READINGS: Jeremiah 20:7-9; Romans 12:1-2; Matthew 16:21-27

“Get behind me, Satan! You are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.”

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1

LABOR DAY

Safety first

On the holiday to honor work and workers, it’s worth remembering that workplaces are not always as safe as they could be. According to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, more than 28,000 Americans between 2002 and 2006 were killed on the job. Mining had a high fatality rate—27.8 per 100,000—but was second to agriculture, forestry, fishing, and hunting at 29.6. In 2005 U.S. workplaces had 4.2 million nonfatal injuries and illnesses, of which about 4 million were injuries. While the U.S. industrial safety record has improved drastically since 1900—when, for example, the mining fatality rate was 10 times higher than today—and is far better than that of the developing world, it’s worse than that of most countries in the European Union. What can you do to promote the safety of work and workers?

TODAY’S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 2:1-5; Luke 4:16-30

“The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor.”

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2

RAMADAN BEGINS

Think fast

Fasting for religious or spiritual purposes is an ancient human practice. Jews, Christians, and Muslims consider their periods of fast (Yom Kippur, Lent, and Ramadan) the holiest times of the year, and these three great religious traditions share similar goals for fasting: namely, to cleanse the body and mind of impurities, focus all attention and energy on God, repent for one’s sins, mourn losses, and remember graces received. As Muslims enter their month-long fast, be respectful of their holy obligation and consider what your holy obligations are as a follower of the Prince of Peace.

TODAY’S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 2:10b-16; Luke 4:31-37

“For who has known the mind of the Lord so as to instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.”

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3

All together now

Whether it’s family, work, school activities, or the neighborhood bowling team, for groups to function and achieve a common goal individual members need to figure out how to work together. While a little competition can be healthy, the cutthroat variety usually ends up dividing people and working against the collective effort. Saint Paul used this same argument when he told the Corinthians to stop their rivalries and factions and work together for the kingdom of God. Cooperation and respect will take people a lot further than conflict.

TODAY’S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 3:1-9; Luke 4:38-44

“For we are God’s servants, working together; you are God’s field, God’s building.”

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4

In deep water

We use the phrase “in over your head” to indicate being in a situation that presents challenges that go beyond a person’s capacity or resources to cope. People sometimes “get in over their head” financially or find themselves in a classroom or a job function for which they have not been properly prepared. In a larger sense, however, we are all “in over our heads” in life, part of something more vast, mysterious, and complex than we alone can manage. We need each other, and we need the guidance of One who can guide us as we navigate the deep water we find ourselves in.

TODAY’S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 3:18-23; Luke 5:1-11

“Jesus said to Simon, ‘Put out into the deep water and let down your nets for a catch.’”

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5

Something old, something new

It’s hard to imagine the time when Christ and his message was new, but indeed they were. At the beginning many people had trouble accepting his person and his gospel, just as many do today. Back then they wanted to see him in terms of what was familiar, well-known, comfortable. But he tried to move them off this course. New things, like new wine or a piece of a new garment, do not go onto or into old things, like old wineskins or garments. Can you experience your faith as something new and maybe a little uncomfortable, challenging you to fresh ways of seeing and doing?

TODAY’S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 4:1-5; Luke 5:33-39

“New wine must be put into fresh wineskins.”

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6

Peace is with us

“The moral right to conscientious objection is recognized in the 1994 Catechism of the Catholic Church (sect. 2311), but it is in no sense mandatory,” noted St. Thomas University Professor Scott Wright in a recent issue of St. Thomas Magazine. “Still, as a form of Christian witness, pacifism—the opposition to all war—has also had a long and distinguished tradition.” This tradition is rooted in Jesus’ Beatitudes and the gift of peace he leaves with his disciples; it is further sustained by Saint Paul’s admonishment to the church in Corinth to be fools for Christ—and bless when reviled, endure when persecuted, and speak kindly when slandered. Peace be with you today and every day following.

TODAY’S READINGS: 1 Corinthians 4:6b-15; Luke 6:1-5

“When reviled, we bless; when persecuted, we endure; when slandered, we speak kindly.”

MISSION LADIES

After the summer hiatus, the Mission Ladies will be starting up again on Wednesday, September 3. All are welcome! No special talent is required to participate. Work can be done at home if you are unable to attend on Wednesdays.

We are a small but mighty group. We meet diligently to sew and restore toys. We respond to anyone who is needy.

Extra helping hands are still in need to sew, knit, crochet, stuff or make yarn hair for dolls. We are also in need of white eyelet fabric for the Christening Bibs.

If there are ladies who would like to be part of our Mission Ladies group, please join us every Wednesday morning from 9:15am until noon in the rectory basement. Please call me for more information (708) 839-9605.

Religious Education News...

CLASSES FOR 2008-2009 for Grades 1-6 begin on September 14/15. All registered families will receive a schedule and class assignment in the mail.

Classes for Grades 7/8 begin on Sunday, September 21. All registered families will receive a schedule in the mail.

CATECHISTS NEEDED: First grade Sunday and Monday catechists are needed desperately. Jesus says, "Let the children come to me." Are you going to be the one to tell Jesus, "I was too busy to help?" Call me at 352-2383 if you have time to share with our first graders. The students, Jesus, and I are depending on YOU!

I also would like to add to my "needed" list another 3rd and 4th grade catechist for Sunday and a 6th grade catechist for Monday evening. I know that I can rely on the wonderful parishioners of St. Cletus to respond to this important plea for help.

VIRTUS TRAINING: Remember that any adult that volunteers time to work with children in any capacity must attend the Protecting God's Children Workshop and have a certificate of participation on file. I am presenting workshops at St. Cletus on September 7 and September 9. You MUST REGISTER on line at www.virtus.org.

STEWARDSHIP

“What profit would there be for one to gain the whole world and forfeit his life?”

St. Francis of Assisi once said, “Remember, you are what you are in the eyes of God, and nothing else.” We often forget this stewardship wisdom when we spend all of our time, talent and treasure to gain more of things of the world. Instead, we need to learn to set our priorities based on God’s values and not the values of the material world.
