NOTES FROM FATHER BOB...

FIFTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME 2010

"I hope I'm old before I die." The lyrics of Robbie Williams' hit song reflect the desire of most of us to have a long and full life. A recent scientific survey reported that the secret of a long life is regular churchgoing. The study found that churchgoers have lower blood pressure, suffer less from depression and have stronger immune systems. Apparently, those who regularly attend a place of worship are nearly a third more likely to live longer. No one seems to know quite why this should be so – some think that religious people actually take better care of themselves; others think that the friendship and support which go along with belonging to a church may be part of the reason why religious people live longer. Whatever the reason, it would appear that faith is not only good for the soul but good for the body too.

The lawyer in today's gospel asks that age-old question: what must I do to inherit eternal life? That's not just a question about having a long life or life without end, but is also about a certain quality of life. What must we do to lead a full, fulfilled and truly human life? How do we lead a good life, a happy life? How do we achieve our potential? Faced with the reality of death, how can I ensure that my life has lasting meaning and significance?

The people of Israel faced exactly that question during their wanderings in the desert. They had to decide what was important in their life together and in their relationship with God. God offers them commandments and laws to help them – not impossible ideals ("not beyond your strength or beyond your reach"), but practical guidelines to make their community life peaceful and equitable. These laws also ensure that the people can enjoy a rich and fruitful relationship with God – so that the people can live fully, as God intends. God is not imposing arbitrary rules on the people. His laws are not so much prescriptive as descriptive. God is quite simply telling the people what will lead to a happy, human, full life.

So when the lawyer comes up to Jesus with his question, Jesus simply reminds him of what he already knows. If he wants to live the right quality of life – the kind of life which satisfies the human heart's longing for eternity, for meaning and value – all he needs to do is to follow God's Law: love God and love his neighbor. "Do this and life is yours". But although the lawyer knows the right answer intellectually, he obviously has missed the heart of the law. Because his question, "who is my neighbor?", is designed to seek a restriction: if I have to love my neighbor, who qualifies as such? The parable of the Good Samaritan reveals that for Jesus, if we are to receive God's gift of eternal life, we need to stop thinking in terms of restrictions and limitations, and start loving as God loves – in an open-ended way. For Jesus a neighbor is never an object, always a subject. I am the neighbor: it is my duty to be a neighbor, to help those in need. That is the way to eternal life.

In our own lives, it is so easy to have the lawyer's attitude – to seek to draw boundaries, to exclude, to restrict, to do the minimum. This is true of our relationship with people, with God, even with ourselves and our own bodies. What do I absolutely have to do and what can I overlook? Who do I have to take notice of and who can I safely ignore? What is the bottom line?

Jesus' answer is simply that the human heart's longing for love and for eternal life is boundless, limitless, because it is made in the image of God himself. So, the only way we are going to be able to satisfy our "eternal longings" is by loving as God loves – inclusively, generously, and even extravagantly. The hallmark of our love is that it should be "with all our heart, with all our soul, with all our strength and with all our mind". Not a closed love, but an open-ended love. Such loving may not guarantee a long life on earth, but that is how Christ – the image of the unseen God – loves. That is how Christians – who are the images of Christ on earth – are called to love too, not by way of prescription or command, but quite simply because that is the only way to inherit eternal life.

*With Love,
Father Bob
Pastor*

FIFTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

First things first

What would happen if you and a whole bunch of other people really took to heart these words of scripture: “You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself”? What, in other words, would be the result if you and I and lots of others put God first in our lives? There would be mutual respect between people. The love of God would be lived out. Violence would disappear. No one would lack what they need. It sounds too good to be true, but with God all things are possible. Do your part and give it your all.

TODAY’S READINGS: Deuteronomy 30:10-14; Colossians 1:15-20; Luke 10:25-37

“Turn to the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul.”

MONDAY, JULY 12

Conflict may be unavoidable

Jesus is the Prince of Peace. Yet he himself rejects the idea that his teachings will lead to a Pollyanna world of shiny, happy people. Christianity is not a “nice” religion for “nice” folks. It’s a hefty and challenging commission to make God’s justice tangible on the planet—as the prayer says, “Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.” That task requires the surrender of power and resources from the grip of the mighty into the hands of those who are meek. Are you ready to surrender that superior position without a contest?

TODAY’S READINGS: Isaiah 1:10-17; Matthew 10:34-11:1

“I have not come to bring peace, but a sword.”

TUESDAY, JULY 13

FEAST OF HENRY - When church met state

The feast of Saint Henry (d. 1024) gives us a chance to face the church as a political reality. We are far removed from Henry and the first millennium, yet some of his long-ago actions still affect the church today. For example, Henry strongly supported enforced clerical celibacy, not for a spiritual purpose but in order that public land and offices that he had granted to the church might not be passed on to any clerical descendants. That in turn ensured that the bishops to whom he granted these benefits would remain loyal to him, the last of the Holy Roman Emperors. Indeed, he was a man of his times, but perhaps Henry should be invoked as the patron saint of (and a most excellent reason for) the separation of church and state.

TODAY’S READINGS: Isaiah 7:1-9; Matthew 11:20-24

“If you do not stand firm in faith, you shall not stand at all.”

WEDNESDAY, JULY 14

The not-so-invisible God

If there’s one thing Christians believe above all else, it’s that Jesus Christ is the Son of God—the Incarnation, God made “visible.”

Though the Letter to the Hebrews tells us that “faith is the . . . conviction of things not seen” (11:1), we hear from another New Testament letter, to the Colossians, how Christ “is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation” (1:15). Another way to say all this is that Jesus is the revelation of God: If you want to “see” the invisible God, if you want to know who God is, then look to Jesus. Believe in him and hear his message of loving God and neighbor with everything you have.

TODAY’S READINGS: Isaiah 10:5-7, 13b-16; Matthew 11:25-27

“No one knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.”

THURSDAY, JULY 15

FEAST OF BONAVENTURE, BISHOP, DOCTOR OF THE CHURCH

Faith seeking understanding

The play The Million Dollar Saint, written in the mid-1950s, portrays Saint Francis of Assisi returning to earth at a Jesuit university and recommending that they “throw away all books” because intellectual pursuits were proud and led to all kinds of evil. Unfortunately the playwright misunderstood the saint who actually welcomed eminent theologians to his humble fraternity. Saint Bonaventure, a near contemporary of Francis, studied at the University of Paris, was a distinguished thinker, a contemporary of Thomas Aquinas, and became the head of the whole Franciscan Order. But Bonaventure’s sharp mind never dissuaded him from the primacy of love. Clear thinking and holiness are not enemies. In an age of Religion for Dummies, it’s good to be wary of simplistic approaches to profoundly complex human questions. We didn’t learn all there is to know about faith in kindergarten, and the more we know, the more we may love.

TODAY’S READINGS: Isaiah 26:7-9, 12, 16-19; Matthew 11:28-30 - “Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me.”

FRIDAY, JULY 16

FEAST OF OUR LADY OF MOUNT CARMEL

Everyday holiness

Mount Carmel is located in the Holy Land. A chapel dedicated to the Virgin Mary was built there in the 12th century. Devotion to Our Lady of Mount Carmel centers on the scapular, which was originally a broad piece of cloth worn over the shoulders symbolizing the “yoke of Christ.” She promised: “Whosoever dies wearing [the scapular] shall not suffer eternal fire. It shall be a sign of salvation, a protection in danger and pledge of peace.” By sanctifying almost every aspect of human life, sacramentals, like the “Brown Scapular” as it is now known—along with holy water and cards, medals and rosaries—bring us closer to Jesus. And that is what our faith is all about.

TODAY’S READINGS: Isaiah 38:1-6, 21-22, 7-8; Matthew 12:1-8

“I tell you, something greater than the temple is here.”

SATURDAY, JULY 17

FEAST OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY - How do you see Mary?

A fair amount of confusion exists around the subject of Marian apparitions. Do Catholics believe in them? Perhaps the best answer would be: “Some do and some don’t.” In rare cases the Catholic Church may judge an apparition to be worthy of belief, but that belief is never required of Catholics. According to the Marianum Pontifical Institute in Rome, of the 295 reported apparitions studied by the Holy See through the centuries, only 12 have been approved as worthy of belief. Such an apparition is believed to offer evidence of Mary’s continuing presence in the life of the church. Whether we choose to believe an apparition or not, we can see that Mary offers a timeless witness of the full response to God’s plan for our lives: “Thy will be done.”

Director of Social Concerns

Hello St. Cletus Church parishioners,

My name is Gabe Valdes. I am a St. Cletus graduate and a junior at LTHS. I am a boy scout in Troop 19, working towards becoming an Eagle Scout.

At the end of July, I am hosting a school supply drive. Supplies collected will be given to the clients of the St. Cletus Food Pantry. There will be more details about this drive and what you can do to help in next week's Canticle. Thank you in advance!

FOOD PANTRY UPDATE!

Thank you for your generosity in helping us serve our July 8 food distribution clients. Once again we ask your help as we restock our shelves and begin making up bags for our next distribution. Here are a few things to keep in mind:

- At this time the most needed staples are dry pinto beans, pasta, meals in a can/box, canned meat, jelly, boxed side dishes, canned fruit and all sizes of diapers.
- Our supply of “extras” is also very low. Some favorites include coffee, powdered or evaporated milk, juice, crackers or cookies, baking mixes, oil, toiletries, laundry detergent and dish washing soap.
- On the weekend, please drop off your donations in the food bins provided in the back of Church. During the week, you may drop off your donations in the food receptacles provided outside the Kindergarten classroom when you come to the 8:00 AM daily Mass, or at the rectory, from 8:15 AM-5:00 PM.
- All non-perishables are greatly appreciated. Please remember to check expiration dates to avoid out-of-date goods which we cannot use.
- The Food Pantry distributes groceries from the vestibule of the Church on the second Thursday of each month, from 6:30-8:00 PM. Our next distribution will be on August 12.

Thank you for adding a “food pantry” item or two to your shopping list. Your ongoing support is greatly appreciated! If you have any questions, please contact me at (708) 215-5418 or mford@stcletusparish.com.

SUMMER PROJECTS UPDATE!

The bases for the light poles have been installed and the light poles should be completed within the next week.

Temporary lighting has been installed in the church and the electricians continue to work on changing the very old wiring. We are working with ComEd to schedule that project for the Fall.

Please check the Canticle weekly for updates.
