Notes from Fr. Bob...

25TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

An ancient philosopher wrote that there is an art to being generous. If people have the resources to be generous, they can do so without vulgar showing off, or making those who receive their generosity feel patronized. People who are truly generous are those who do not value money itself, but only in as much as they can spend it usefully on others.

There are also two contrasting sorts of character. One is the prodigal person who spends money foolishly, like the son in the parable. The other is the miser, who hoards money, and even steals the goods of others. The character Harpagon in the play THE MISER, by the seventeenth-century French playwright Molière, is such a person. He defrauds his own horses of their oats, and instead of “giving” people a good day, he “lends” them a good day.

There is also an art to receiving. We can receive presents, or help, or a compliment, graciously. Or we can be ungrateful, sullen and resentful. Even worse, we can resent the good things that come to others, and be eaten up with envy. The same ancient philosopher, Aristotle, defined envy as “a kind of distress at apparent success on the part of one’s equals”. It is, then, feeling put out, or even bitter, at the good that happens to other people, especially people close to us, or of the same group. The ancient world had a special term for this: it was called the “evil eye”.

This is exactly the phrase used in the Greek of today’s Gospel reading. At the end of the story, the landowner asks the grumbling worker, “have you got the evil eye because I am generous?” In Mark’s Gospel, Jesus lists the “evil eye” as one of the things that come out of people to make them unclean. There was much superstition attached to this phrase, but in the New Testament it is a vivid image for intense envy and resentment. This was thought to show itself in people’s looks, just as we might say “green with envy”.

So in the Gospel reading we have the contrast of the generosity of the landowner and the envious reaction of the laborers. We might see the landowner as representing God, and the workers as the people of the Old Testament. The Jewish people had labored under the law of Moses for many centuries, and now that Jesus was also bringing in the Gentiles to be saved, some of them felt a certain resentment. Certainly Paul’s letters show us that there were disputes between Jewish Christians and those who where converted from paganism. Such tensions would be natural in the formation of a new society. Perhaps the parable is a warning against being blinded by tensions such as this.

But the parable has a wider application than the early Church. We may at times react against the injustice that we see in the world, and often we are right to do so. There is a proper sense of indignation when we see a real injustice done. However, as far as our relations with God go, we have no cause for envy. Like the landowner in the parable, God bestows gifts to people according to the divine will, and everyone has been given some gift. The basic gift is, of course, life. Without that, we would have nothing either to moan about or to rejoice in. As St. Paul asks the Corinthians in this regard, “What do you have that was not given to you?”

Envy of other people’s money, good looks, fame, or even spiritual gifts, does nothing except to corrode the character of the person doing the envying. Thinking about the gifts we have been given ourselves, and being grateful for them, is more positive and more gracious. We can also rejoice in the gifts that God gives to others. As members of the Church, we are all part of the same body, and can therefore share in each other’s gifts. So rather than begrudging God’s generosity or moaning about what we don’t have, we can bear in mind the words of Blessed John Newman: “God has created me to do him some definite service. He has committed some work to me which he has not committed to another. I am a link in a chain, a bond of connection between persons. He has not created me for naught. I shall do good; I shall do his work.”

FOOD PANTRY UPDATE

Volunteer Spotlight: Jacobs Family

Every week you can find Maria Jacobs and some of her crew packing bags of produce for food pantry distribution. Even before COVID-19, Maria was a regular volunteer helping with registration at the pantry. Seeing an increased need in mid-March, Maria and her family stepped right in. It has certainly been a family affair. At anytime Maria has been joined by 5 of her kids, which made concerns about social distancing much easier. We're so grateful for the Jacobs family. Their hard work, counting, recounting, dividing, and preparing has been a HUGE help to weekly pantry operations. Plus, this crew is just a joy to be around. Thank you!

Although our school building has limited access, you can still take a tour of our school! Visit <https://stcletusschool.com/about/why-choose-st-cletus/> to take a virtual tour of our classrooms and common areas. The 360° media can be found on the lower left-hand side of the webpage.

4TH GRADE RELIGION

4th grade has been busy recently learning all about the different parts of the liturgical year. Knowing God and His church are part of your child's daily lives each day at school is one of the many benefits of choosing a Catholic education and one of the reasons everyday is a great day to be a Cardinal!

KINDERGARTEN CORNER

We have lots of fun in Kindergarten. To learn we use fun items like magnadoodles, playdough and kinetic sand to practice our sight words, math skills or to make fun pictures or glow sticks to write our letters in the air. We also go out of our way to acknowledge someone who is being kind in our class. The children have been practicing name writing "the kindergarten way" with one capital letter, the rest lowercase and correct formation. We learned about our initials and had fun decorating them. On top of all that, we have been busy practicing math skills with ten frame work and we also made a graph to see how long each of our names are.

Besides all of these academic skills, we are learning how to be a cardinal—the first big word we are focusing on is COMPASSIONATE. Cardinals are respectful, responsible and compassionate! The children are working hard to "do God's work" and "let their lights shine." That's what we are all about here at St. Cletus School!

RCIA

In these uncertain times people often search for something deeper and more meaningful. Some desire to learn more about the Catholic Faith, or desire to complete Sacraments on a faith journey that was started when they were a young child. Perhaps your spouse or a close friend is Catholic or you saw something that prompted questions or inspired your interest about becoming Catholic. Maybe you have a child who was never baptized as an infant, and now that they are older you desire them to be baptized and receive the other Sacraments of Initiation. The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RCIA) or Children (RCIC) is the way the Church invites others to explore the teachings and practices of the Catholic faith. If you are interested in joining us this year, or have questions about the program, please contact Fr. Ken Baker (kbaker@stcletusparish.com) or Barb Campbell (bcampbell@stcletusparish.com). We would be happy to answer questions and get you enrolled in RCIA this year!

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION – IT'S NOT TO LATE TO REGISTER!

For students preparing for the Sacraments of Reconciliation, First Eucharist and Confirmation we will have additional online lessons for this sacramental preparation.

It's not too late to register! Please try to get your registration forms in ASAP so that we have enough time to get the books and other materials ordered and ready for your child! ## DIRECTION

Isaiah tells us something that we already know, and yet seem to forget every now and then. He tells us, essentially, that God is God and we are not. When we're confused and troubled and can't figure everything out, it might be wise to recall Isaiah speaking on the Lord's behalf and explaining that God—who is on a much more, well, Godly wavelength than we are—moves in ways we can't even imagine.

Saint Paul, by comparison, has everything figured out. Kind of. At least he understands his calling in life—to magnify Christ in everything he does. That should give all of us the direction we need. Jesus gives us direction, too, explaining to us once again in the parable of the workers in the vineyard that the last will be first, and the first, last.

SAINT PIUS OF PIETRELCINA (1887-1968)

September 23

Did the World War II American flyer really see Padre Pio in midair, preventing the bombing of his village below? Did Pio actually “bilocate” in Italy, the Holy Land, even America, as countless witnesses testified? Or “read hearts” before penitents spoke? What of the stigmata, Christ's wounds imprinted on Padre Pio's hands, feet, and side? John Paul II, who as a young man visited Pio, never mentioned these extraordinary elements at the canonization. Instead, the pope spoke of “trials accepted with love,” referring perhaps to sanctions restricting Pio's faculties for hearing confessions and celebrating public Mass, imposed because of criticism, later discredited, sent to the Vatican; of Pio's offering his sufferings in union with Jesus' passion for a suffering world; of his continual availability to sinners seeking direction and absolution; of Padre Pio's prayer that blossomed in charity, especially through his House for the Relief of Suffering, a healthcare facility that anticipated by decades today's holistic partnering of medical science and spirituality. Finally, how comforting for us ordinary Christians, this extraordinary saint's most frequent advice: “Pray, hope, and don't worry!”
